I understand that you had rather make hay than go to the picnic. I used to love to rake the hay when I was a girl but I did it with a hand rake into winrows and the men would load and us girls would rake after the loading. I was up to my old home where I was born, (last Sunday) but I didn't go in the house. I would have loved to have had you along with us as it was once your great great grandfathers home and he lived to be over a hundred years old. Maude took several shots of the place. hope she gets them finished while here and I can get some of her if they are good. think I will write to Aunt Fatties now so I will ring off.

lovingly Grandma.
